INTRODUCTION

The present Monograph has been developed as a simple pseudo-index to the articles published in the Third Reich Study Group Bulletin for the years 1963 through 2018.

The Third Reich Study Group is an affiliate of the German Philatelic Society, and started in 1963 by several collectors of the mails of Germany in the period leading into and through the conclusion of World War II. The early issues were typewritten, with short articles. The primary contributors were the founders Benjamin R. Beede, James E. Duffy, and Myron Fox. The Bulletin quickly grew to 12-16 pages, and was published 4 times a year.

When I discovered the Bulletin in March 2018, I was looking for a small needle in a haystack, specifically the meaning of one handstamp and some other markings which I had encountered on several covers in my collection of internment camp mail originating in Mexico. These markings were not in the standard references I had encountered, and I had been unsuccessful in learning its origin, although I suspected it was probably used in Berlin during mid-1944.

To facilitate my research, I began to download and examine the issues of the Bulletin found on the Third Reich Study Group website at <https://www.trsg-usa.com/>. These were being scanned and uploaded to the site by Christopher Kolker and his son. After examining a number of these back issues, I began to realize what a fascinating subject this was, and the importance of these back issues, and while I did not think it was likely that I would ever collect deeply in the subject area, I decided that I wanted to make this file of back issues more accessible and “user-friendly”.

In previous years, I had consolidated the back issues of several philatelic organizations journals into a smaller number of consolidated PDF files where one to five years of issues were included in a single PDF file. Although this combined file was occasionally bulky to manipulate, and would typically be too large to transmit by email, it would allow the viewer to examine a chronological group of issues of the journal more quickly and sequentially than when having to deal with a series of individual journal files.

Several other enhancements were generally made. I would add the PDF bookmarks and in several instances, processed the file with an OCR engine to make them searchable. To accomplish this task, I have used an older Windows 7 based application by Nuance Software, called PDFConverter. It has many of the same PDF file manipulation features that are found in Adobe Acrobat, but was much less expensive. It is an old, obsolete program (Nuance Software had a newer product it currently sells, but this one serves my purpose.)

I decided to perform these steps with the back issues of the TRSG Bulletin to provide myself with an easy-to-use set of the Bulletin. Each individual issue was then downloaded, and the file was then renamed to reflect the issue identification, for example:

TRSG Bulletin(004-012)(1963-1968).pdf
TRSG Bulletin(013)(1968).pdf
TRSG Bulletin(014)(1969 Vol 4 No 1).pdf
etc., etc.

These were then combined into a single file using groups of two years (typically eight) of back issues, resulting in files that were about 60-120KB in size. I have found that these consolidated files can be up to about 150 KB in size before they become too awkward to deal with.

These consolidated issue files were then named as follows:

TRSG Bulletin(Vol 02-04)004-017)(1963-1969)(F).PDF which includes issues for the years 1963-1969, TRSG Bulletin(Vol 04-06)(018-025)(1970-1971)(F).PDF includes issues for the years 1970-1971, etc., etc., to
TRSG Bulletin(Vol 49-50)(202-209)(2017-2018)(F).pdf includes issues for the years 2017-2018,

Where 2018 was the final year for which issues of the bulletin were available. Missing as of Oct 18, 2018 are issues from the following sets of two year files:

TRSG Bulletin(Vol 15-16)(113-115)(1994-1995)
TRSG Bulletin(Vol 47-48)(194-201)(2015-2016)
TRSG Bulletin(Vol 49-50)(202-209)(2017-2018) Some issues available

Chris has advised me that these “missing issues” will be scanned and made available at some future time, and when that effort is completed, they will be added to the “package”.

When the set of all back issue files are completed, as presently structured, there will be 25 consolidated issue files, which appear to be about 2.0 GB in total file size.

Each combined file was then examined, and any pages which were badly skewed during the scan process were rotated back into alignment, and the PDF bookmarks were added. These bookmarks were added for each article with philatelic/postal history content. During my processing for the first 20 years, I also added bookmarks for some of the Study Group business and their regular auctions, but by the 1990 issues, I discontinued this practice as it was time consuming and detracted from the primary task of making postal history content more readily available.

A header page was added to each file to describe the contents. The next processing step was to process each file by an OCR engine located within the PDFConverter application, which does a decent job of reading most typewritten and computer printed pages.

The PDFConverter application also has the ability to convert these bookmarks into a traditional “Table of Contents”, where each line entry (bookmark) would link directly to an article in the file, and this was done for each consolidated file. The “(F)” at the end of the file names simply indicates that this was the version of the file after my final processing step (i.e., merely my bookkeeping entry).

After compiling these consolidated files for the first 20 years, it occurred to me that the individual Table of Contents pages, if all were consolidated into a single file, would provide a crude, but comprehensive, index of the titles and authors of the articles found in these back issues, so a new document, this one, was prepared. The Table of Contents pages were then extracted from each consolidated file and merged into one single file, which is also searchable. This file was given the name TRSG Bulletin(000-209)(1963-2018)Table of Contents.pdf. Note: The (000) was included in the file name to force it to the top of the list of files, and has no other purpose

During the examination of the various issues, it was discovered that several interim efforts were made to provide an Index to groups of issues of the TRSG Bulletin. Unfortunately, the previous Index appears to be limited to Volumes 1 – 40, and Volumes 104 – 177. There may be another Index in the later missing issues. These can be located by searching for the term “Index” in this Table of Contents. Some consideration was given to include these Index pages within this Table of Contents file, and I would like to get some feedback from anyone who examines this file as to whether this would add value. An alternative might be to create a separate document with these various Index files combined into a single document. On the other hand, the present Table of Contents will serve fully as a Title and Author Index for all articles included in the digital issues.

This “package” was prepared primarily for my personal use, but will be offered to the Third Reich Study Group to redistribute to its membership or to place it on their website.

For organizations who prefer to not make all of their publications files too readily available to the philatelic community (yes, there are some of these), what I have suggested is that they continue to maintain their original format of one issue per PDF file on the public side of their website – much like is done now – and then take the consolidated files, and make them available privately to their membership either directly by CD-ROM or DVD, or from a “members only” area of their website.

I greatly appreciate the value of making all of the older issues of a journal available to the public, as it no doubt will inform and educate those interested in the subject, and the option to obtain more current – or better designed – versions of the data could be an incentive to join the organization. I also appreciate the desire to offer certain resources primarily to the membership which supports the group and which helps prepare the resources.

This present work was done without the direct sponsorship or inputs from the Third Reich Study Group, and all design/implementation decisions, as well as any errors, are solely my responsibility. Please bring any errors, omissions, or typographical and formatting errors to my attention at the address below.
